

On April 6, 1898, the North Pole was discovered. If you could conduct science experiments there, what types of things would you hope to learn about the icy environment and the animals that live there?